Subject: URGENT NOTICE: Shivelers in the Timetilter

Angelie Bonneville <abonneville@collusia.com>

September 28th

To Lisa Solein (see more ▼)

Dear Ms. Solein,

I am sending this email to inform you of the deaths that have occurred recently in the Timetilter. Three maintenance workers were found dead in the Timetilter's rivers. They were meant to be fixing some of the Timetilter's underwater machinery, and were on duty during the estimated time of death. I've attached a detailed report form below.

Instruction would be appreciated.

Angelie - how could this happen? I am extremely worried about how the press would react if they got hold of this information. We cannot afford to have Collusia's reputation damaged by the deaths of just a few workers.

Do something to cover this up, ASAP. This should be between the two of us and no-one else.

Ms. Solein,

I apologize, but I have a bad feeling about this. I think we should investigate this situation more. It really doesn't make any sense to me - how did trained swimmers drown while doing a standard maintenance check in a river? Something doesn't add up. Even if I try to cover this up now, if it happens again, the press will find out eventually.

Don't worry about that - it's completely unnecessary. Your job is making sure everything in the Timetilter works perfectly. If it's not a problem with the machinery, then it's not your job. Everything will be fine as long as the press doesn't get a hold of this.

Keep me informed if any more incidents occur.
